Our readers will receive an equal gratification in perusing the following account from the Dominica Journal, of the proceedings in that island upon the danger which lately threatened it, with that which possesses all ranks on their former efforts of defence; and cannot fail to admire the liberality as well as loyalty which that colony has manifested.

On the 14th May, a fleet consisting of 12 French and 6 Spanish ships of the line; with several frigates and other smaller vessels, arrived at Martinique. On the Thursday following, a letter from brigadier general Brereton, governor of St. Lucia, announced to governor Prevost the unpleasant intelligence; in consequence of which the alarm was immediately fired at Roseau, and the whole colony put under martial law. All the merchant ships lying in the unprotected road of Roseau, of which (amounting to 22 sail in all) several were ready to sail with valuable cargoes, were directed to move to the fine bay of Prince Rupert's, and anchor under the guns of the fort—a measure of precaution which we doubt not has saved them from becoming, as on a former occasion, the prey of the enemy; while their crews contributed to strengthen the garrison, and the activity of several of their commanders essentially promoted the preparations of defence. His excellency himself also retired without delay to Prince Rupert's, with all the garrison of the southern district, excepting only a single company of the 46th regiment, and a part of the militia, who were left solely with the view of preserving order in Roseau, but with directions to retreat immediately, on the event of any attack on the island.

This delay was not lost upon us; every moment was busily employed in preparations for defence. At the important fortress of Prince Rupert, a number of new breast works, entrenchments, and batteries (both of mortars and cannon) were speedily constructed, under the auspices of our brave, judicious, and indefatigable governor, to guard every point of access; a number of furnaces for heating shot were quickly erected; and in short, every arrangement made for a vigorous resistance.

The moment at length arrived, when we believed that British courage was to be put to a severe test. On the 5th of June, about two o'clock in the afternoon, the signal was made from Grand Bay, of the approach of the enemy; and before sun set, the whole of their ships could be seen from Roseau, apparently standing in for the island. No doubt was therefore entertained of a meditated attack; and accordingly all the troops and militia marched immediately, with every possible dispatch to Prince Rupert's, leaving the town under the protection of those spirited veterans whose exertions on so trying an occasion would have done credit to vigorous youth, and will ever remain a monument of their zeal in the service of their country, will ever reflect honor on themselves, and transmit a laudable example to posterity.

son, the militia of the neighborhood, and the seamen belonging to the Jason frigate, and the merchant ships lying in the bay must have amounted to nearly 2000 men, all of whom were ready and eager to combat the enemy.

The enemy perhaps acted a judicious part in declining to attack Prince Rupert's, although boldly challenged by a gun from the outer Cabrit. We do not know what number of troops they may have had on board; but at all events we may venture to alledge, that the conquest of this colony, even had it been ultimately accomplished, would have been dearly purchased. The position is by nature very strong; no resource of art has been spared to fortify it; it was under the command of a general of known talents and invincible courage, determined to hold out to the last extremity; it was abundantly stored with water, provisions, and ammunition, and contained a garrison sufficiently numerous not only to defend every accessible point, and to render an enemy's hopes of success by assault altogether fruitless, but even to annoy them in various ways. And we were under no apprehension from their ships, for they durst not approach sufficiently near to do any important injury to the garrison, without the risque of inevitable destruction from our red-hot balls.

We were now inclined to believe that Villeneuve's experience at Aboukir will induce him to amuse himself no longer in these seas. The probability seems to be, that this fleet has either gone to St. Domingo, or returned home. We have only to add, that we sincerely wish him a cordial meeting with lord Nelson; and we most earnestly pray, that should this colony again be menaced by a similar force, we may ever have reason to repose the same confidence in the abilities of our chief governor, that we may ever experience the same valor, activity and unanimity in our troops and militia forces; that our brave veterans may ever shew our youths the same noble example; and finally that we may ever as happily escape the indescribable horrors of a French government.

he, the said captain, being unable to appear at my consular office, declared that he sailed from Newburyport on the 13th of March in the said brig, sound and staunch, for these islands, loaded with American produce and other articles not prohibited by any treaty between the belligerent powers; that nothing material occurred during his voyage, till the 30th of said March, in lat. 39, with a heavy sea running, which caused the vessel to make much water; he, the said captain Bridges, observed a vessel at the stern; that a short time after, the said vessel fired a gun to leeward; he the said captain immediately shewed his colors, and took in sail to let them come up, and soon observed that said vessel was an English cutter. At half past one, P.M. he hailed captain Bridges, and ordered to send his boat on board him, but the sea being very turbulent, he the said Bridges, observed to said cutter that his boat was too small, and at the time he would not trust himself in it, particularly not knowing how to swim, and that if they wished to search his brig, they might come and do it at their own peril. They returned in answer, that if he, the said captain, should not heave his boat out they immediately would fire upon him, and said captain Bridges, observing such obstinacy, told them to fire and be damned, and that he knew the neutral laws and the treaty between England and the United States.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

On Friday July the 6th this distinguished prisoner being placed at the bar, before a respectable jury, the charges of forging and uttering three checks drawn and presented in the name of the Spanish ambassador the Marquis de Casa Yrjo, upon the bank of Pennsylvania, for the sum of 600, 1000, & 300 dollars, were opened against him by Mr. Ingersoll. The trial was unavoidably protracted by two long adjournments, and lasted twenty two hours in session. The testimony was voluminous and detailed, and occupied above twelve hours.— On the part of the Commonwealth it went to shew the prisoner's expensive and extravagant mode of living and the narrowness of his means, from whence it was to be inferred that he must have resorted to artifices and forgery in order to sustain his great expences—the presentation at the bank of the third check confessedly by Cabrera's direction, and the similarity of the writing in this to the two preceding checks. For the prisoner it was sworn by several witnesses that he was a man of illustrious family and connexions—and it was attempted to be proved that he had received the last check from a Frenchman, who however swore in absolute denial of this charge, and was confirmed by strong evidence of witnesses as well as corroborating circumstances. When the testimony was closed, the case was spoken to by Messrs. Heady and Lewis for the prisoner, and Mr. Charles Ingersoll and the attorney general for the prosecution: These discussions were closed

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

We are informed, that Captain MURRAY, appointed to command the ADAMS frigate, ordered to disperse the French picaroons off our coast.

The movements of the West India squadron have been so much confused by false and contradictory accounts, and have followed each other in such rapid succession that it is almost impossible for any reader who runs over the newspapers as they regularly come out to catch a correct and consistent view of the whole history. Let us attempt to remove this inconvenience by sketching out a rapid narrative of these events, divested of every thing that is uninteresting and every thing that has been contradicted by more accurate reports. Should such a review present us with no memorable achievement, no reacquaintance at sea and no invasions upon land, it may perhaps serve to shed a faint gleam upon the important revolutions of futurity.

The Rochefort squadron consisting of ships of the line, 3 frigates, and 2 frigates under the command of admiral Minster pursued its route to the West-Indies arrived at Port-Royal in Martinique on the 19th of February. Its achievements were irregular and inglorious; and their principal object seemed to be either to make the enemy pay the expences of the equipment by levying contributions and seizing merchant vessels wherever they appeared, and to make a descent upon no place which they were unable to master by a coup de main. In a few hours after their arrival Martinique, they made sail for Dominick attacked the town of Rasseau, reduced most every house to ashes, and at length concluded by levying a contribution of £6000 upon the inhabitants. Enriched by this booty, and the capture of 8 or 9 of British merchantmen which they sent to Guadaloupe, they sailed to St. Kitts where they burnt several ships and levied a contribution of £1300. At Nevis, they collected about 10000 dollars. On the 4th of April they at length arrived before the city of St. Domingo, at the very moment when the brave general Ferrand was engaged in a bloody battle with Desaulles; and landed 1000 of their troops who marching in the rear of the Spanish army overpowered and defeated them. Having remained only a short time before St. Domingo, they directed their course once more towards their native country and arrived at Nantz about the 24th of May. Meanwhile adm'l. Cochrane reached the West-Indies with 5 sail of the line and 1 frigate, and found the enemy and the reach of his pursuit. The French government had not relinquished its original design on the departure of admiral de la West Indies a satisfactory peace and security of the British. On the whole we conceive that the operations of France were to be directed upon three points. With as large a force in the Mediterranean as they could possibly dispatch to levy contributions for paying the quitrent, and to invade those islands which their troops were sufficient to attack as they received intelligence of a British fleet, they were to sweep the coast of Europe. The Toulon Fleet, laid up at Martello, had for its object "to run out of the Mediterranean the British to run home." Having plans of the English Admiralty ; to send detachments in different directions, a great part of their navy was sent to execute the other objects of the project. They were then to imitate the foreign policy of the celebrated Hotspur, to meet the British navy, en masse, break it into small divisions ; annihilate them in the West Indies, manœuvring in the English Channel, co-operating with the Dutch against the French, and to engage or terrify Lord Gardner's fleet for the Bologne flotilla.

The French government had not however relinquished its original designs, nor the departure of admiral Minis-sary the West-India a satisfactory signal the peace and security of the British islands. The Toulon fleet once more appeared on the theatre of action, to bewilder the cabinet of St. James. Having escaped from port, it repaired to Cadiac, compelled the British admiral Sir John Orde to retire, and joined the Spanish fleet.

John Orde was certainly unable to cope with the French in point of numbers, he certainly had it in his power by coming to an engagement with them, to cripple and disarm their ships as much as to give a momentary check to the prosecution of their designs; and the simple fact that the French in spite of the superiority of their force would not seek an engagement might have been sufficient to convince him, that they had some great object in view, which required the utmost expedition. Let us not however heap disgrace upon the disgraced head of the British admiral. Sir John Orde, the late English commander in chief, has been already ordered to strike his flag and return to England to give an account of his conduct. Let us rather go in search of the combined French and Spanish fleets.

This fleet amounting to 17 sail of the line, 4 frigates, 2 corvettes, 3 brigs and containing unknown number of troops, sailed from port 8,000, and others 20,000; arrived at Martinique on the 15th of May.
It was now that we expected to receive the most wonderful accounts of the at-chievements of the French. Trinidad, Antigua, Jamaica, each island of Great Britain, was successively in surrender to their arms. How much then were we surprised to hear of their protracted inactivity! Whether this was to be attributed to the wretched state of the crews, to the dissensions between the Spanish and French admirals, or to their peculiar plan of operations, we are unable to determine; certain it is, that in the important interval of 20 days, the French did nothing except embarking two thousand artillerymen, at Guadaloupe with bombs and shells, and taking possession of Diamond Rock. That their plan comprehended some important movements in the West Indies is scarcely to be disputed. That this system of operation was prevented by the arrival of Lord Nelson at Barbadoes, appears probable from the intelligence of that event having reached Martinique before they left it.

Let us condense within a few words the remarkable adventures of the combined fleet. They left Martinique on the 6th of June for Guada-loupe; and called Antigua on the 8th. After having taken the homeward bound fleet from that island, 14 in number, having on board 5,400 barrels of sugar, coffee and other merchandise; all of which are estimated at £400,000 sterling.
Behold here one of the execrable effects of war!
The valuable cargo conveyed by a French tristine, was on the way to Martinique when it was discovered by an English frigate and floop of war, upon which the commander of the French vessel set fire to all the merchant vessels and made his escape. Meanwhile the combined fleet proceeded in a northerly direction; and having reached certain latitude, divides into two detachments. The Spanish fleet proceeds to the Havana, while the Toulon fleet steers towards the coast of Europe. We are compelled to leave it; as it is more than ten degrees to the northward of the southernmost W. India Islands.

Will Lord Nelson overtake it? We have no certain data to determine. Nelson left Antigua on the 13th of June, and the French have consequently 5 days the start. When we add to this the absolute impossibility of pursuing the very same route and the uncertainty of occasionally meeting with vessels who may give him the proper directions, we may certainly take it for granted that Villeneuve like Menis has been fortunate enough to escape the British thunder.

On the whole we conceive that the naval operations of France were to be directed to two points. With a large force in the West Indies they could possibly dispatch they intended to levy contributions for paying the expense of the equipment, and to invade those British islands which their troops were sufficient to conquer.
As soon as they received intelligence of the arrival of a British fleet, they were then to return to Europe. The Toulon fleet, said a French officer at Martinique, had for its object "to make Nelson run out of the Mediterranean; and then farther to run home." Having consulted the plans of the English Admiralty; induced them to send detachments in different directions, or to send a great part of their navy out of the channel; they were then to imitate the figurative policy of the celebrated Horatius. Unable to meet the British navy, en masse, they were to break it into small divisions; leave Nelson behind them in the West Indies, make for the British Channel, co-operate with the fleet in Brest, and engage or terrify Lord Gashier and finally open the Bologna straita off gun boats, with an army of 50,000 men. The invasion of Ireland in 1798, the oppressions of the Roman Catholics, constituting no less than 3/4ths of the whole population of the Island, and the late determined and ignominious rejection of their petition for a redress of grievances, conspire to mark out that island as the most probable point of attack. What would be the fate of such a perilous project, or whether all that we have written and others have thought on the plans of the French admiralty, be nothing more than the visions of an Arabian tale, time alone is competent to determine. As yet, nothing is certain but that "clouds and darkness hang upon it."

(Richmond Enquirer.)

From the Bridgetown (Barbadoes) Mercury of the 25th ult.

Rear admiral the honorable Alexander Cochrane, in his majesty's ship Northumberland; and his majesty's ship Jason, captain Champain; Barbadoes, captain Nourse; Pheasant, captain Henderson; and Lily, captain Morrison arrived here on Saturday, and came to anchor in Carlisle Bay, in the course of the afternoon. The Alligator, captain Collier, arrived yesterday in co. with a Spanish brig from Spain bound to the Havana, which she had captured, but not being able to work her into the bay, bore up for St. Vincent.

Lieutenant general Sir William Myers, and suit, arrived on board the Northumberland, and his army which he so gallantly and promptly volunteered with Lord N. have again taken up their quarters at St.
Ann's, having returned by the above ship, the 96th Regiment excepted, which is left to strengthen the garrison at Antigua.

By these arrivals we learn that Lord Nelson to his own great disappointment, and that generally of his fleet, and the army embarked with him, not to have found the enemy at Trinidad, proceeded in quest of him, touched at Antigua on the 12th inst.
where his fleet came to in the evening, and having landed one regiment, and shifted the rest of the troops to the Northumberland, &c. got underway again next morning, still hoping to trace the enemy's route. The Netley schooner which had charge of the Antigua homeward bound trade, consisting of fourteen sail, which left that island on the 18th inst. was at this time returning into port, her convoy having a few hours after sailing unfortunately fallen into the enemy's hands.

Lord Nelson spoke this vessel and received information from her of the capture, and of the situation of the enemy, who was then supposed to be off Bermuda, removing the prisoners, and securing the prizes; some of their ships being at the same time taking in live stock from that island. The gallant admiral instantly made the signal that he had "tidings of the enemy," and followed it up with such others as communicated every necessary arrangement and disposition for the determined fight. With crowded sail and favoring wind; his whole fleet bent their course as they had been advised; and from the best calculation it was judged that he could not be more than 36 hours astern of them; so that a general expectation and sanguine hope is entertained, that he will bring these (as they boast themselves,) "proud sons of war," whom their Corsican tyrant vaunts, "shall dry up the channels of British prosperity and commerce," to battle and teach them that Nelson and victory are synoni-mous.

Admiral Cochrane although of necessity obliged to resume his station here, nevertheless offered his ship to Lord Nelson, & would have shifted his flag to a frigate; but his lordship deemed it unadvisable to deprive this vigilant officer of his line of battle ship, expressed his thanks for the offer, and conceived the victory as secure with 11 as with 12 sail of the line.

IMPROVEMENT IN MILKING.

Mr. PRINTER,
One of your customers, who keeps a cow, or two, and sells a few quarts of milk every day, has found an improvement in milking to advantage to cow-holders, that from pure benevolence he would recommend it to all his brother milk-fellers in the country. It is found that from half a pint to a pint and an half of what we call drippings, or the last milk drawn from the bag, is almost as much better than the other as cream is better than milk. Indeed, if you are careful to keep the drippings by itself there will be scarcely any cream on the other at all.— I therefore take care to observe the moment in milking when the milk comes yellow and thick, to send off my large pail, the remainder I get in a separate vessel, and keep for private use; and I assure you in ten or twelve hours it is converted almost into a solid body of cream, three quarters of which would have gone into the general mass, if it were not for my good husbandry in milking it by itself.

You may take it for granted I sell none of this last "gleaning." It is the gift for only that I dispose of; and I can afford to sell it at the common price with a clear conscience, which is much more agreeable to me than mixing with water (commonly called watering) my milk, or giving false measure. Trusting that my neighbors in-general, though I doubt not but many of them already practice it, will thank me for communicating this improvement in economy, I hope you will oblige us by publishing it in your paper.— Being your humble servant, SAMUEL SAWWELL.

THE following Ode, written for the occasion, was sung at the festival of the Young Federal Republicans, of Boston, the 4th instant.

O D E

For the YOUNG FEDERAL REPUBLIC-CANS of BOSTON, July 4, 1805.

Tune—"Adams and Liberty." ARISE! Sons of Boston! of Freedom & Truth!
And THE DAY, which your Fathers gave, hail with devotion!
And long may our Country be blest with the Youth,
And the manhood that leads to her glorious promotion!
May OUR CAUSE and THE DAY
All that's noble display, And keep Vice and Democracy always at bay!

CHORUS.
May our country more federal and virtuous grow,
And justice and truth soon disarm ev'ry foe!

Sons of fire's whole best blood was shed for your gain,
Who fought for, obtained and secur'd you, each blessing;
May your conduct evince that just sense you retain
Of the rights, which thro' them, you with joy are possessing!
Give to WASHINGTON's name,
To JOHN ADAMS—acclaim!
And to JEFFERSON give—Carter's Cove—to his shame!

CHORUS.
May our country more federal and virtuous grow,
And justice and truth soon disarm ev'ry foe.

When we read the exploits, and the toils of our Sires,
Or list to the tale of the "poor broken Soldier;"
When we think of the blessings which Freedom inspires,
And feel too, alas! that our Liberties moulder;
"OUR RIGHTS SHALL NOT DIE!"
Is our hope, and our cry—
And, to guard them—To arm! and to victory we'd fly!

CHORUS.
And our country more federal and virtuous would grow,
For justice and truth should disarm ev'ry foe!

From what has transpir'd on our historick page, And within a few years—ah! what dangers are dreaded!
Constitutions are lopt, to suit Faction and Rage, And by what vengeful Chief, are our Democrats headed!
Ere to manhood we rise,
"Twould excite small surprize If RANDOLPH—or CLOUGH should an Emp-ror arise!

CHORUS.
But our country more federal and virtuous shall
grow,
For justice and truth will disarm ev'ry foe!

Tho' the moon of Democracy's full, at her height And thick clouds and darkness, our Sun has obscured; Tho' Liberty hangs by the "small thread of fate," Federal rights, by our foes are most strangely abridged;
Tho' elder Friends sleep,
As Democrats creep—From the scabbard of youth shall the sword of

CHORUS.
And our country more federal and virtuous will grow,
And justice and truth soon disarm ev'ry foe!

The old world is delog'd with Mi's'ry and Crimes,
And her "ORDER OF DAY" is misrule and commotion;
The "Slav'ry and War" spread her ill thro' her climes,
And Neptune wades "chin high" in gore, thro' his ocean;
May our new World e'er be, Prop'ious, Peaceful and Free, The delight of the Skies, of the Earth, and the Sea!

CHORUS.
SHE WILL BE! or Federal and Virtuous she'll
grow,
And Justice and Truth will disarm ev'ry foe!

Sons of Boston! arise! and like patriots of old, March forth! firm and true, and each Virtue inherit!
Let Freedom's gifts be more endearing than gold,
And encreasing years give you a chaste, watchful spirit!

THE BOSTON NURSERY.
A correct NURSERY.
And the School to teach age and THE YOUTH to be free.
CHORUS.
Thus our Country more FEDERAL and VIRTUous will grow,
And JUSTICE and TRUTH soon disarm ev'ry foe!

Mr. SNOWDEN.
BY inserting the enclosed in your useful paper, you will oblige a friend

A SUBSCRIBER.

SACRED to the MEMORY of Mr. ISAAC JANNEY, who departed this life, July 17th, 1805.

LET gay ambition with her giddy throng, As interest points, address the vernal song;
Still in the path of labor'd Sattery toll, And seek for virtues in a barren soil.
But be it thine, my artless muse, to raise To modest merit, well deserved praise:
For goodness lost to bid thy numbers flow, In the smooth strains of unaffected woe:
From blossom'd hopes and life's meridian height, See JANNEY'S spirit wings eternal flight:
Not wisdom, truth and innocence combin'd;
Distinguished worth and sentiments refin'd, Prevent the stroke, he meets a hasty doom; Death shrouds his bright'ning prospects in the tomb, Mourn then, my muse, in strains elegiac mourn,
And deck with cypress his untimely urn.
Oh fate severe! just to overcome the toil Of early life, and see the prospect smile With dawning bliss, but never to enjoy; Too sudden shades the rising bliss destroy.

'Twas thus the prophet, by divine command, From Pisga's top beheld the promis'd land, He saw and died, for so did heaven ordain, But God is just, then let not man complain.

VALUABLE FAMILY MEDICINES.

Just received direct from the Patentees, and
FOR SALE BY JAMES KENNEDY, JUN.

DRUGGIST;

The following Valuable Medicines: Dr. Rawson's Anti-Bilious and Stomach Bitters.

PREPARED BY

THOMAS H. RAWSON,

Member of the Connecticut Medical Society.

THESE Bitters have undoubtedly had the most rapid sale of any Patent Medicine ever before discovered, and are justly appreciated for their singular and uncommon virtues for restoring weak and decayed constitutions, and all that train of complicated complaints so common in the Spring and fall seasons, such as intermittent Fever and Ague, long Autumnal Fevers, Dy-senteries, &c. They are also a very pleasant bitter for common use, and where they are known they have taken the place and superseded the use of all other bitters in public houses as well as in private families.—Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Lee's (Windham) Bilious Pills.
THE great sale and increasing demand for these valuable pills for these twelve years past, bespeak their intrinsic worth. They have proved singularly efficacious in Bilious and Yellow fevers, Jaundice, Head Ache, Dysenteries, Bilious Cholic, Colic, Female complaints, &c.

The very great demand and high esteem in which these pills are held throughout the United States and the West Indies, has induced many to counterfeit them; the purchaser is requested to observe that the name of Samuel Lee, jun. (the patentee) is affixed to each bill of directions, in his own hand writing, or they will not be genuine. Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Itch Ointment.

A certain and safe application for that disagreeable complaint called the ITCH. Price 42 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Anti Bilious Pills, or, Family Physic.

The extraordinary celebrity these pills have gained, the universal demand for them and esteem in which they are held by medical men of the first eminence, are sufficient testimonials of their intrinsic worth. In great colds and sudden attacks of disorders, an early use of these pills often produces the happiest effects, and taken once in eight or ten days in cases of indigestion, headache, dizziness, pains in the stomach and bowels, dysen-teries, diarrhoeas, dropsies, &c. and a liberal use of my anti bilious bitters in the intermediate time has relieved patients almost to a miracle.— price 25 cents a box.

Thompson's Aromatic Tooth Paste.

whitening and preserving the teeth. It likewise takes off all disagreeable smells from the breath, which generally arises from scorbutic gums and bad teeth. This paste is much in use, and highly esteemed by all those who value the preservation of their teeth; it may be applied at all times with the greatest safety. It is neatly put up in pewter boxes with paper directions. Price 50 cents a box.

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 1, 1805.
Polygraphick Painting.

THIS art, so long kept a secret and exclusively possessed by the Polygraphick Society in London, now in the possession of a Citizen of the United States lately arrived from Europe; who proposes to exhibit by subscription, two hundred copies from an original Allegorical Painting in the Shakespeare Gallery, New York, by permission of the Proprietor: being

WASHINGTON.

Supported by LIBERTY, VIRTUE, and JUSTICE.
VIRTUE is holding the emblem of the reward he has merited. In the right of the piece, AMERICA, distinguished as an Aborigine, is seated in a pediment representing her laws. In the left is PAINFULNESS to HISTORY, for a subject worthy of her art, who supposed to answer,

"There is none more worthy than Washington."
The whole forming a more emblematical monument to the memory of that great man, than has yet been devoted to the public.

To those who esteem his public services and his private worth, and to the patrons of improvement in the arts, this work is dedicated. Such as are already furnished with different engravings on this subject, it is hoped, will find room for the present undertaking, when they consider, that it will be a PAINFULNESS the design new, executed by a process, which renders it more durable than oil paintings—that it requires no glass—that while their prints contain, perhaps, a resemblance only, this work affords a correct idea with the addition of six beautiful allegorical figures.
The price also is reduced so as to leave, comparatively, merits, no object.

Subscriptions, at Eight Dollars each, payable on delivery, (which is little more than the price of a fine engraving of the same size) are received by Conrad & Bookellers, Philadelphia; Robert Gray, Alexandria Rapine, Conrad and Co. Capitol-hill City of Washington; and generally by Bookellers throughout the Union; who will please to return their subscription certificates to Conrad and Co. Philadelphia, previous to the first of November next, when the work will be ready for delivery.

Frames will be procured, of any pattern, if required, on the most moderate terms.

IT IS ALSO PROPOSED TO EXECUTE PORTRAITS

Of Mr. and Mrs. Washington.
On a smaller scale, 15 inches by 12, executed by the same process, and will be ready for delivery at the same time, on subscriptions of Four Dollars and Fifty Cents each, including a Gilt Frame. It is a principal aim of this work, to produce the most correct likenesses of valuable copies.

One of the Paintings is now to be seen at Mr. Gray's Hotel, for a few days, who will receive subscriptions. As this copy is ordered to be sent to Richmond, another will be forwarded, if subscribers desire, to Robert Gray's, King street Alexandria, with whom subscribers may also enter their names.

The Art is presumed that the secret art of Polygraphick Painting is known only to himself in the States; having travelled from the Carolinas to Washington without finding a master of it. By this original paintings may be multiplied, so as to render difficult to point out the difference. The Polygraphick picture, of the two, when compared together, is most brilliant, and the nature of the process cannot be rendering it more durable. In fine the whole is a true and beautiful copy, that the mind is lost in
